Fund Manager Comments

The global economic recovery is expected to continue during 2022. The IMF is forecasting that world GDP will expand 4.9% in 2022 after 5.9% in 2021. Despite the strong recovery, there are a number of factors which continue to result in volatility, including new COVID variants, challenges in vaccine rollout in the developing world, disruptions in global supply chains, significantly elevated inflation and concerns over the Chinese property sector. Global central banks have signalled the start of a withdrawal of monetary stimulus against a backdrop of inflation proving to be much higher and more persistent than previously anticipated. The challenge remains to contain elevated inflation pressures without undermining the recovery in employment and the broader economy. Against this backdrop, bond yields are expected to be volatile but central banks have previously pledged to do whatever it takes to support economic recovery and financial markets stability.

Factors that could boost global growth is 1) drawdown on massive build-up in consumer savings; 2) the wealth effect of robust financial markets; 3) pent-up demand, particularly in leisure and travel sectors; 4) continued easy monetary & fiscal policy; and 5) significant increase in OPEC oil production lowering oil prices. Factors that could constrain global growth are 1) rapidly rising inflation 2); new, more transmissible variants of Covid-19; 3) a faster-than-expected reversal of monetary and fiscal support; 4) constrained global supply chains, especially in logistics and semiconductors; and 5) increased geopolitical tension between US and China.

Global yields have been on a 40 year structural decline caused by ageing demographics in Advanced Economies and the inclusion of China into the global economy since the 1990s. Following the Global Financial Crisis and the onset of quantitative easing, global yields have fallen well below long term averages. Since the 1950's, the U.S. 10 year yield has averaged 5.7% but fell to 1.5% during 2016 and even lower to just 0.5% in March 2020 during the initial phase of the COVID-19 pandemic. Rising oil prices and the ongoing disruption to global supply chains has led to re-emerging concerns over inflation risks. Central banks have acknowledged over the past quarter that rising inflation is much more persistent than they had anticipated. Although the Federal Reserve has started a withdrawal of monetary stimulus, global monetary policies are likely to remain historically accommodative through 2022 which should keep short-term interest rates well anchored.
